

APPLIED BEHAVIOR ANALYSIS PARTIAL DAY PROGRAMS IN WASHINGTON

Partial day applied behavior analysis (ABA) programs, often referred to as ‘day programs’, are short-term, intensive programs for families who are eligible for Medicaid.

As waiting lists for long-term ABA programs can be long, day programs are meant to be used to ‘bridge the gap’ between receiving an autism diagnosis and starting permanent ABA services. Children are only enrolled in day programs for a short time, usually 12 weeks, while families look for and are on waiting lists for other services.

Day treatment programs are held in clinics or centers, and children usually attend for 3-4 hours per day, several days per week. The focus of these intensive ABA day programs is to teach the child critical skills, such as communication skills, that will help them in their daily life. The short-term day treatment programs currently available in Washington state are:
